

What Do Kagan, Levin and Pelosi Have In Common?

USING THE MILITARY TO ADVANCE THEIR RADICAL SOCIAL AGENDA

As the Dean of Harvard Law School, Elena Kagan barred military recruiters from the campus because she said the military's policy of prohibiting open homosexuality was "repugnant." She fought the military all the way to the Supreme Court and lost!

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-CA) and Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Carl Levin (D-MI) have also made clear that they know better than our nation's military leaders about what's best for our troops. They have announced plans to ignore military leaders and force open homosexuality on the military by amending the Defense Authorization bill. Both Defense Secretary Robert Gates and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Mike Mullen have asked Congress to allow the military to complete their review of overturning "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" before Congress acts.

So what do Elena Kagan, Senator Carl Levin and Speaker Nancy Pelosi have in common? They want to use the military to advance a radical social policy that current and retired military leaders oppose.

Contact your members of Congress today at 202-224-3121 to oppose these plans to overturn the current "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy as an amendment to the Defense Authorization bill.
